Literary Fiction In The 20th Century - Responses To The Holocaust And World Wars

Introduction

The horror that was the Holocaust destroyed not only generations of Jewish people but influenced in a very fundamental way peoples of all nations everywhere.

That influence, that profound effect, is visible in a very tangible way in the literature produced in its aftermath.

Among the authors featured in this list are Beryl Bainbridge, Vicki Baum, Eric Berthley, Giuseppe Berto, Joseph Roth, G.K. Chesterton, Douglas Reed, Ernest Rhys and Nevil Shute.
