Indian Economic Planning and 20th Century Development

Introduction

This collection provides a comprehensive survey of the economic development of India since independence. Particular emphasis is placed on the technological revolution and democratic planning of the latter half of the 20th Century in rural communities – that constitute 70% of the Indian population and where much of India's Poverty is concentrated. This collection provides much statistical information, published reports and critical analysis of the economic development process, its aims & objectives.
