– Pacific Region

Catalogue No: KIPAPR

The International Politics of the Asia – Pacific Region

Introduction

This collection critically explores the notion that a distinctive regional power bloc is developing, linking countries bordering the Pacific, with East Asia at its core.

The collection sheds light on the complex interplay between global, regional and national forces which have transformed the Asia – Pacific arena into one of the most vibrant and economically successful regions in the world.

Historical narratives alongside geo-political and geo-economic perspectives are included to examine the shifting pattern of power relations and security structures across the region, set within a wider world context.
